

Journée internationale « The future of the CAP – L’avenir de la PAC »

22 juin 2018 – à Montpellier Supagro

22 June 2018 – Montpellier (France)

Suite au colloque « Politiques agricoles et alimentaires : trajectoires et réformes » des 20 et 21 juin à Montpellier, clôturé par le Commissaire Phil Hogan, une journée de débats avec des intervenants invités et des tables rondes est organisée sur l’avenir de la PAC le vendredi 22 juin. Y seront présentées et discutées les orientations de la PAC 2020 autour de la problématique générale : la PAC permet-elle les innovations institutionnelles, économiques et techniques capables de répondre efficacement aux défis de demain ? Cette journée est organisée par la SFER avec l'appui des Fondations européennes pour l'agriculture durable et l'alimentation et de Agropolis Fondation.

Following the 20-21 June conference in Montpellier on “Agricultural and food policy: trajectory and reforms”, ending with a citizens’ debate with Commissioner Phil Hogan, the French Society for Rural Economy (SFER) is organizing a one-day symposium on “The future of the CAP” on 22 June in Montpellier, France. This event follows a two-day SFER conference on “Agricultural and food policies: trajectories and reforms”. The objective of the day is to have scientists, policy makers, civil society actors, foundations, NGOs and professionals discuss the general theme of “How can the future CAP foster innovative actions?”

Program

Names with * are confirmed

9:00 - Welcome coffee – Opening by Dacian Ciolos*, former Commissioner for agriculture

9:30 - 10:45 Plenary 1: Can the CAP innovate to face the farmers' revenue crisis?

Do CAP rules and CAP instruments leave sufficient room to innovate (institutionally, economically, technically)? Can rules and instruments be adapted to foster innovative responses to the challenges faced by the agriculture and food sectors?

Speaker: Emil Erjavec*, University of Ljubljana

Commentators: Hervé Guyomard* (Inra)

11:00 - 12:30 Round table 1: Can the CAP promote the agro-ecological transition?

The objective of the roundtable is to discuss and propose CAP-compatible incentives to accelerate the agroecological transition.

Participants: Janet Dwyer* (University of Gloucestershire, UK), Pierre-Marie Aubert* (IDDRI), Henriette Christensen (Pesticide Action Network Europe) tbc, Hannes Lorenzen (Arc2020), Marc Duponcel* (DG Agri), Jannes Maes (CEJA) tbc – Moderated by S. Thoyer* (Montpellier Supagro and SFER)

12:30-13:30 Lunch

13:30-14:45 Plenary 2: The Brexit and the consequences on CAP and the UK agricultural policy

The objective is twofold: to analyse how the Brexit consequences will force the CAP to innovate in response to the new constraints and opportunities of a European Union without the United Kingdom; and to discuss the orientations of the upcoming British agricultural policy. Since UK does not have to comply with CAP rules, how does it intend to innovate and design a policy package responding better to objectives?

Speakers: Allan Matthews* (Emeritus Professor Trinity College, Ireland), Berkeley Hill* (Emeritus Professor University of Kent)

14:45-16:15: Round table 2: how to bring CAP closer to our plates?

The objective of the roundtable is to discuss the pros and cons of integrating better the nutrition and food-related health stakes into the CAP, and if yes, how.

Participants: Erik Mathijs* (University of Louvain), Nick Jacobs* (Ipes food), Bruno Ferreira (French Ministry of agriculture), representative of DG Agri, Monique Goyens (BEUC) tbc, moderated by Nicolas Bricas* (Cirad and Chaire Unesco)

16:15 -16:45 - coffee break
